POSITION AVAILABLE

Application period open until the vacancy is filled. Start date December 11, 2007 or as soon as possible thereafter.

High-level managerial position in an affluent, environmentally and socially conscientious northern California county.

Duties consist of the direct supervision, which may be shared with up to six other high-level managers, of one employee.

REQUIRED QUALIFICATIONS:

Resident of Marin County.
Must attend approximately one meeting at night per month, year round.
Must be able to sit attentively for up to 7 hours without dozing off.

DESIRABLE QUALIFICATIONS:

Aspirations for other political offices are beneficial to the job but in no way relate to the job or its responsibilities. In fact, this appointment will help you bypass the tedious and potentially expensive process of actually getting elected by the people to whom you are ultimately responsible.

Experience in overseeing the expenditure of large sums of money, up to $300,000,000.00, is helpful but not required since there are enough other people to tell you what to do.

Experience in hiring and firing employees is useful since ultimately you will be responsible for the long- and short-term employment of approximately 700 people, but not required since there are enough other people to tell you what to do.
Position Available

Strong public support for employees and labor unions is extremely helpful, especially if there is a desire to continue employment beyond the period of this appointment.

Not-so-secret, off-the-record complete disdain for labor unions and labor contracts is beneficial, especially if you believe that adherence to collective bargaining agreements is the cause of everything that is wrong in education and things would be so much easier and better if we did not have to follow contracts.

All interested applicants call 415-457-8811.

At the November meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Marin Community College District, Trustee Greg Brockbank, recently elected to the San Rafael City Council, announced his resignation from the Board, effective December 10, 2007. His resignation leaves a vacancy to be filled, presumably by appointment. Interested? See above.

Tick-tock, tick, tock, time on the clock.
Amount paid to the attorney for the District during the month of September:
$26,450.00

The human heart does not always beat evenly. Under the influence of emotion it speeds and slows, altering its rhythm in response to ecstasy and ardor and rage.

In music, a similar fluctuation in beat is called ‘rubato’ and it is often used by composers and performers to impart subtlety and delicacy to a musical composition or performance. It is produced by alternately speeding or slowing the tempo – selectively stretching or compressing the rhythm.

The use of rubato is common in music of the Romantic period, but it is also used in contemporary music. Jazz vocalists use rubato when they sing ‘behind the beat,’ or when they ‘rush the beat,’ to create moods of longing or nostalgia.

Other artists also use techniques like rubato. The compassion and sensitivity in Chaplin’s comedy is an example of his tasteful use of rubato.

And rubato could also be thought of as a metaphor for compassion and sensitivity in human relations. The Dalai Lama would call it ‘keeping a soft heart.’ In Italian and Spanish it would be described as being ‘simpatico.’ The French call it ‘bienséance.’ In Yiddish, rubato is the key to being a ‘mensch’ [gender neutral]. Rubato is the graciousness, propriety and sensitivity that guide us in our relations with friends and loved ones.

And rubato should also be a guide and a goal in the workplace – the goal of courtesy and civility and decorum. It’s the opposite of the bully-boy brutishness and lack of sensitivity that some bosses and managers exhibit when they interact with subordinates.

At a recent meeting of our Academic Senate I witnessed an example of bully-boy brutishness in action – a tactless display by a Dean, abusing and disrespecting one of our faculty colleagues. What should have taken place in the privacy of the Dean’s office was aired by the Dean openly and publicly at a Senate meeting, turning the event into a public trashing. It was a gratuitous abuse of managerial authority.

But what I found equally disturbing was the “piling on” by some of our Academic Senators in their own ungracious attack on this faculty colleague. And it all took place in front of students and visitors, without the victim being present to defend himself or the senate chairperson interceding to stop the assaults. All parties surely showed a lack of rubato – but their actions may also have been a violation of Contractual norms relating to confidentiality, harassment and professional ethics.

I have been UPM Grievance Officer for more than five years, so I am not naïve about occurrences of bullying and abuse by COM administrators – as Grievance Officer I’ve filed several complaints against District managers for just such behavior. What I do find surprising, however, is that members of our Academic Senate would aid and abet management by helping malign one of their own faculty colleagues. I would suggest that these senators read the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) guide to professional ethics in Article 24 of our Contract:

“As colleagues, professors have obligations that derive from common membership in the community of scholars. Professors do not discriminate against or harass colleagues.”

Especially now, during Contract negotiations, it is particularly important that we show solidarity, (and hopefully some degree of rubato) and be supportive of our faculty colleagues. The District would love to split our ranks in order to gain advantage at the bargaining table.

Exemplary Mismanagement… and Getting Paid for it

I applaud LA Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa, who announced last week that he will forego a yearly salary increase because of the unstable state of the city’s finances. Though the raise was a modest $9,300 increase, he felt that due to the city’s tight budget, now was not the most appropriate time to enhance his pay. Such leadership shows respect for the city’s residents and for the welfare of the city in general.

Unlike Villaraigosa, COM’s President White didn’t hesitate this year in accepting a much larger increase in her yearly salary, because of the unstable state of the city’s finances. Though the raise was a modest $9,300 increase, he felt that due to the city’s tight budget, now was not the most appropriate time to enhance his pay. Such leadership shows respect for the city’s residents and for the welfare of the city in general.

President White’s applying for positions at several other community colleges was a ploy to get the Board of Trustees to pay her more in order to keep her.

Now, few people will take exception to a well-earned boost in anyone’s salary (White’s MINIMUM increase of $48,000 per year is more than five times the increase that Villaraigosa declined!), but in the case of our president, the added dollars came with no additional duties, other than that she must promise to stay on at the college and continue her “exemplary” work here.

As for her exemplary work, as superintendent of the District, President White is in charge of overseeing Accreditation, yet the recent WASC visit has everybody—managers, faculty and staff—certain that we will be moved from warning to probation come January. The downward shift in Accreditation status will result in everyone—with a few “chief” exceptions—working even more to produce a finished Program Review, a rushed Review that can almost certainly only result in an inadequate document. This change in Accreditation status comes after repeated airings in the President’s Monday Briefing that we have met all of WASC’s demands and will be fully accredited.

Directions from the top level add even more insult to the already declining status of our college. In the days before the recent Board of Trustees election, one heard incumbent claims of fiscal stability, “skyrocketing” enrollment, new partnerships, restored programs—in short, a “turned around” college. But the truth is, that we ARE going on probation; we are NOT increasing enrollment; and if we listen to what all college unions are telling us, we have no funds for any (more) salary increases, new or expanded offerings or desperately needed new hires.

Current negotiations with the various college workers’ unions have up to the present moment been stifled by the District proposal of “ZERO.” And, as has been previously reported in The Union Press, the District wants to make you work more—essentially for less. If you consider that the District is firm in its position that it will assign us additional work (up to 37.5 hours weekly) without even a cost of living increase, with or without the additional work, you will be working for less than you are this year.

What’s more is that plans for Modernization have ignored maintenance costs for our new, green campus. In defending the District’s position not to offer any salary increases but to increase reserves from 7.6% (the state requires 5%) to 17%, Chief Financial Officer Al Harrison told UPM’s bargaining team that the District had no idea how it would afford maintaining the new buildings.

One might well ask where all the money is going. After all, we have a larger budget than ever before in the college’s history, fewer full-time faculty than ever before in the college’s history and few students that ever before. So it is shocking to see costly flyers full of mistruths going out to Marin County residents, huge consultants’ fees and the District attorney’s enormous fees (reported monthly in UPM President Lansing’s “Ponderings”), and it is as shocking to see that the COM administration has increased in number by nearly 100% in recent years—not to mention President White’s hefty raise.

What does this add up to? Well, Mismanagement, of course. But also Union Busting: Amid promises of no salary increases more assigned work, a wave of grievances has been filed, but the District’s only response is automatic refusal to discuss potential grievances, forcing (challenging?) the Union to go ahead and file for legal proceedings. While the Union files grievances and pays for the proceedings with Union dues, the District gladly and freely pays their attorney with Marin County taxpayers’ dollars. Clearly the intent is to deplete your Union by forcing it to spend its limited funds.

With its blatant contractual violations—threatening letters placed in personnel files, denied conference leaves based on spontaneously established criteria, denial of contractually mandated teaching loads, denial of Department Chair positions, again based on impulsively created criteria, etc.—the District is trying to bust us. Exemplary? Perhaps of something, but hardly what I would call good management.

If you and/or your department are not in the crosshairs now, you soon will be.

What can we do? What can you do?
First you have to care. Then speak out.
SPEAK OUT!

And all the while, keep in mind the words of Pastor Martin Niemoller:

In Germany, they came first for the communists, and I didn’t speak up because I wasn’t a communist; And then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn’t speak up because I wasn’t a trade unionist; And then they came for the Jews, and I didn’t speak up because I wasn’t a Jew; And then… they came for me…. And by that time there was no one left to speak up.

IS IT TIME FOR A CHANGE AT COLLEGE OF MARIN?

Is it time for our faculty to speak out and urge that Dr. White be replaced as president of the College of Marin?

This is a question that I believe our faculty should be considering, because our college is in a serious state of decline, and this decline, I believe, is a result of the failure of President White’s leadership.

Dr. White has been President/Superintendent of COM for nearly four years. When she was appointed by our Board of Trustees in 2004, they expressed confidence that she would be able to reverse our downward slide that started during the administration of former president Middleton. But this has not occurred. During Dr. White’s tenure: student enrolment has continued to decline; class offerings have been further reduced; our faculty headcount continues to fall while management positions continue to proliferate; an increasing number of grievances, complaints and costly lawsuits have been filed against the District; students are abandoning or bypassing COM to attend other local colleges; the heady promises once made for the $249 million facilities bond have been downsized or withdrawn or reneged; tax money earmarked for educational services is being used for non-instructional purposes; our school has become a cash cow for attorneys, contractors and consultants. And perhaps most disturbing of all, Dr. White has failed to remove us from the “warning” status imposed by WASC during the first year of her tenure. In fact, WASC has indicated that in January it will further downgrade us and place us on “probation” (one step short of receivership) because of our continued failure to comply with WASC directives. College of Marin is rapidly straying from the path as a praiseworthy and viable educational institution.

I believe that we have lost our way because of a failure of competent leadership, and that our faculty should be calling for our Board of Trustees to replace Dr. White with an administrator who can effectively lead us out of this morass.

I believe it is possible to reverse this decline and restore our college to its once heralded position of respect and excellence, but we must have a change in direction, a change in vision, a change in values, and a change in leadership. In 2003, our faculty spoke out with one voice and voted No Confidence in former president Middleton for his long history of flawed governance. But we waited ten years before we spoke out clearly and forcefully enough to force his resignation. Had all of us spoken out sooner, perhaps the damage to our college would have been less severe, and our decline less precipitous.
Will we wait another ten years before our faculty expresses its dissatisfaction with the downward direction that Dr. White and her management team have taken our college?

I believe that we cannot and should not wait, and that now is the time for our faculty to urge our Board of Trustees to consider selecting a new president for the College of Marin.
